President's Message

Dear all

A Happy New Year to all, from a mild but wet Scotland.

It is both a pleasure and a sorrow to be writing this editorial. A pleasure to be communicating with you all but a sorrow as our President Nanny has asked me to do this following the recent death of her son.
We have always seen ourselves as a family of academics in CiCe and CiCea and I know that we all feel for Nanny, are sorry for her loss and look forward to seeing her in 2014.

In this issue, there is a call for our conference and PhD school in Poland in June and it is shaping up to be another excellent conference, where many aspects of citizenship – in all its facets – will be shared, discussed and argued over in an atmosphere of respect and collegiality. I look forward immensely to see you all there.

2014 is also the year when CiCe will be bidding for another 3 years of activity relating to citizenship under ERASMUS+ funding proposals. The Executive is working on the bid, including the valuable advice from our external evaluator, Iring Wasser, whom many of you will have met. We have our fingers crossed that what we are working on is a bid that will enable us to build on our work. It will mean though that there will be calls for information and they may need a fast turn around. We know you will understand.

Finally, there is some evidence in this edition of surveys from EU showing positive responses to citizenship and identity issues from EU citizens. It might be worth looking at these in conjunction with the report from the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement

(IEA) (Schultz et al, 2010).
Involving some 140,000 high school students and some 62,000 teachers across Europe, there are a mixture of positive and less positive features identified. It is well worth a look.

Once again, all the best for 2014. See you soon.

Henry Maitles, CiCea President-Elect

Your hosts: The University of the West of Scotland

UWS School of Education has been involved with CiCe since its inception. We are proud to announce that we will be a CiCea European Research Centre and that any CiCe member wishing to come to Scotland will be most welcome at any or all of our 4 campuses at Ayr, Hamilton, Paisley and Dumfries.

We would welcome scholars who wish to be involved in research and/or learning and teaching issues and who wish to spend some time in Scotland to be hosted at UWS. We offer accommodation space, particularly in Ayr, Hamilton and Paisley, wi-fi access and access to electronic and physical library.

We have 2 research centres in the School of Education: the Institute for Youth and Community Research and the Centre for Research in Education.

Areas of expertise include, theory of education; philosophy of education; Inclusive education; learning and teaching in education; controversial issues; citizenship and values education; higher education; early years; prison work with young offenders; Holocaust education; linguistic diversity, with specific reference to Gaelic; additional language users; community and lifelong learning.

All campuses are in cities or large towns – Paisley some 10 minutes from Glasgow city centre, Hamilton some 25 minutes and Ayr about 1 hour, all by frequent train services. Glasgow is an international city with many museums and excellent shopping.

Teaching resources

The Open University (UK) has published a report 'Innovative Pedagogy 2013'

(see http://www.open.ac.uk/personalpages/mike.sharples/Reports/Innovating_Pedagogy_report_2013.pdf?utm_source=EUCIS-LLL+general&utm_campaign=eb2dc16d3c-EU-CIS_LLL_newsletter_57_April_20129_28_2013&utm_medium=email&utm_term=0_f4e5c60751-eb2dc16d3c-63191845)

It includes a chapter on Citizen Enquiry, which shows examples of practice that fuse enquiry-based learning with the mass civic engagement of volunteer activism.

Research on European citizenship

7 out of 10 EU citizens say helping developing countries benefits them too. Tackling poverty in developing countries should be one of the main priorities of the European Union, according to 66% of EU citizens. Seven out of ten people (69%) believe that helping these countries is also good for the EU, benefiting its citizens. Despite the economic crisis, more EU citizens are now willing to pay more for groceries and products that support developing countries, 83% of respondents, meanwhile, think that it is important to help people in developing countries and 61% are of the opinion that aid should be increased. These are some key results from a recently published Eurobarometer survey (see http://europa.eu/rapid/press-release_IP-13-1131_en.htm)

Other recent Eurobarometer reports that may be of interest include: (see http://ec.europa.eu/public_opinion/whatsnew2013_en.htm)

Responsible Research and Innovation (RRI), Science and Technology

This survey addresses European citizens' general attitudes towards science and technology, in particular, their interest and level of information on science and technology, the level of involvement that they think they should have in decisions about science and technology, the role of ethics in research and the issue of providing open access to research results.

How Companies Influence Our Society: Citizens' View

Do citizens think companies are a force for good, or bad? What do citizens of the EU and other major economies think about the efforts companies of different sizes and sectors make to behave in a responsible way? Part of the European Commission's policy on corporate social responsibility, this survey answers these and other key questions about citizen perceptions of the influence companies have on society. After an analysis at EU level the results are compared to the results from other countries including the US, China, Brazil, India, and Turkey.

European Youth: Participation in Democratic Life

This survey analyses young EU citizens' involvement with organisations such as sports clubs, NGOs and political parties, as well as their experience of democratic life. Four in ten of those surveyed do not currently take part in any such organisations. Almost three in ten say they are certain to vote in the 2014 European Parliament elections, whereas just over a third say they are unlikely to vote. Those who participate in youth-related organisations are more likely to vote.

Cultural access and participation

The survey follows on from the 2007 research, exploring and measuring how EU citizens think and behave in the area of culture. Importantly, some of these results can be compared against those measured in the previous survey, enabling changes between 2007 and 2013 in the cultural approaches of EU citizens to be mapped.

Europeans' engagement in participatory democracy

How can European citizens make their voices heard? This Eurobarometer survey examines the extent of their participation in the democratic process, at local, regional, national and EU level, as well as the effectiveness of non-governmental organisations (NGOs) in channelling citizens' concerns. The survey also assesses the degree to which Europeans believe they can influence political decision-making through personal actions such as voting in elections, signing petitions, participating in debates and expressing their views with their elected representatives.

European Commission

The European Parliament has approved Erasmus+. This programme combines all the EU's current schemes for education, training, youth and sport, including the Lifelong Learning Programme (Erasmus, Leonardo da Vinci, Comenius, Grundtvig), Youth in Action and five international cooperation programmes (Erasmus Mundus, Tempus, Alfa, Edulink and the programme for cooperation with industrialised countries). It aims at boosting skills and employability, and supporting the modernisation of education, training and youth systems. It is a seven-year programme will have, according to the European Union, a budget that is 40% higher than current levels. See the press release <http://www.eaea.org/news.php?k=118952&aid=118952>

Androulla Vassiliou, Commissioner for Education, Culture, Multilingualism and Youth, said that Erasmus+ will "...contribute to the fight against youth unemployment by giving young people the opportunity to increase their knowledge and skills through experience abroad. As well as providing grants for individuals, Erasmus+ will support partnerships to help people make the transition from education to work, and reforms to modernise and improve the quality of education in Member States."

Questions From a worker who reads

By Bertolt
Brecht,
German poet,
1898 –1956

Who built Thebes of the seven gates?
In the books you will find the names of kings.
Did the kings haul up the lumps of rock?
And Babylon, many times demolished Who raised it up so many times? In what houses of gold-glittering Lima did the builders live?
Where, the evening that the Wall of China was finished Did the masons go? Great Rome Is full of triumphal arches. Who erected them? Over whom Did the Caesars triumph? Had Byzantium, much praised in song

Only palaces for its inhabitants?
Even in fabled Atlantis
The night the ocean engulfed it The drowning still bawled for their slaves.

The young Alexander conquered
India.
Was he alone?
Caesar beat the Gauls.
Did he not have even a cook with him?

Philip of Spain wept when his armada Went down. Was he the only one to weep?

Frederick the Second won the Seven Year's War.
Who Else won it?

Every page a victory.
Who cooked the feast for the victors?
Every ten years a great man?
Who paid the bill?

So many reports.
So many questions.
